Summit and Exhibition

The South Caucasus Infrastructure and New Energy Investment Summit 2014 was officially inaugurated by the Minister of Regional Development and Infrastructure of Georgia, Mr. David Narmania.

The event is a platform for the state and local government representatives and senior management of the companies working in infrastructure industry to meet, discuss, plan new projects, and attract investments for the large scale regional and city infrastructure projects.

Goal of the Summit

The goal of the Summit was:

- Offer a major platform for infrastructure and energy industry experts, key services suppliers, investors, National and Sub-National Government representatives of Armenia, Azerbaijan and Georgia, International Financial Institutions (IFIs) and more, to exchange views and know-how in a perfect environment for networking.
- Assessment of the needs, regulatory issues, featuring new technologies and experienced solutions, unveiling upcoming projects and financing priorities to support development of the Caucasus Region were at center focus.
- Overall and indirectly the Summit's goal was also to show how Georgia and its neighbors Azerbaijan and Armenia are working together on ensuring their economic and social future and on increasing their independence in the energy sector.

Summit Participants' Comments

“The forum was an excellent opportunity for Government, international financial institutions, investors, equipment manufacturers and others to get together to network and discuss the relevant topics of the day. The timing of the summit was good because a lot of things are happening in renewable energy in the South Caucasus.”

Thomas Lubeck, International Finance Corporation (IFC), Regional Manager South Caucasus

“The South Caucasus Infra & New Energy Investment Summit was of interest for us. We had a couple of strong meetings and contacts for the future.”

Alexander Konstantinov, A+S, PR Director

“We have found the summit very interesting and enjoyed the attendance. We hope that such events promote more investments and business in Georgia in the future.”

Toma Jaiani, Siemens,
Head of Representation in Georgia

“Thank you very much for the great event. It was very well done and the speakers covered a lot of interesting and diversified topics. It was a pleasure to cooperate with you.”
